Bible Buddy — Blog Banner Brief

63 banners to produce. Generated 25 October 2026.

THE SPEC

Size 1672 x 941 px (the exact size of every banner already in the library)

Format JPEG, under about 400 KB

Filename the slug given for each banner, lowercase, plus .jpg. Nothing else.

Where it goes public/blog-banners/<slug>.jpg — the site picks it up with no code change

Type Big condensed display serif, all caps, two or three lines. A small ornament above and below. Subtitle underneath in smaller caps.

Palette A Night / gold: deep navy night, warm lamp and candle light, gold lettering. Used for anything historical, biblical or solemn.

Palette B Day / navy + warm orange: daylight scene, navy and orange-red lettering. Used for practical and explainer posts.

Style Photoreal cinematic render, shallow depth of field, rich texture. No cartoon, no flat vector, no stock-photo look.

Never No modern clothing or objects in a biblical scene. No graphic violence. No depiction of God the Father. Keep Catholic subjects respectful and accurate.

Each entry below gives the filename, the headline to set on the image, the subtitle, which palette, and the scene. The headline line breaks are how the type should stack.

Part 1 — Needed now

Four posts published today are borrowing another post's artwork. Three Christian News posts have been running on generated placeholders since 12 October.
